Resignation of Chief Executive Officer of the Australian Council for Private Education & Training (ACPET)

The Board of the Australian Council for Private Education & Training (ACPET) has today accepted the resignation of Chief Executive Officer, Ms Claire Field.

Ms Field has made a significant contribution to the private education and training sector during her four years as CEO of ACPET. Ms Field has been a strong advocate for ACPET members during a period of substantial change in both the higher education and vocational education and training sectors. She has also been instrumental in strengthening ACPET's focus on quality and lifting membership standards.

Ms Field has informed the Board that she is proud of what she has achieved during her time at ACPET and is looking forward to new challenges.

The ACPET Board has commenced a search for a new CEO, and will make an announcement about Ms Field's successor in due course.

Commencing immediately, Company Secretary Larry Davies will serve as acting CEO of ACPET.

The Board wishes Ms Field well and thanks her for her contribution to ACPET and the broader education and training sector.
